

Jennifer Ryan

I have been living and working on the farming lands of north-west and central-west of NSW for most of my adult life. After completing a degree in Veterinary Science at Sydney Uni I moved to this part of NSW and have worked, raised my children and had a wonderful life on the land. Always interested in drawing and painting I got serious when my children went to boarding school and could quite easily spend every day painting now.

The everyday things around me – I am a bit of a bower bird when it comes to some things – and the fascinating patterns and colours in both domestic and native birds and animals are my main inspiration. I am also interested in the interactions between people and the natural world. I do like to bring a smile to people's faces.
